

Chapter 1: Introduction to Photosynthesis

Photosynthesis is the process by which green plants, algae, and some bacteria convert light energy into chemical energy.

Key Concepts:

- Chlorophyll absorbs sunlight.
- Carbon dioxide and water are used as raw materials.
- Glucose is produced as food.
- Oxygen is released as a by-product.

Activity:

Observe a green leaf under sunlight and discuss why it appears green. Relate it to chlorophyll function.